

8.1 An ideal architecture has processing elements that can execute the operations according to the schedule and is supported with appropriate communication channels and memories. The criteria for ideal architecture are: predictable schedule that fulfill the target applications; proper processors, memories and communications that perform the schedule.